24 since the 1960's has found fame in museums, galleries and private 25 collections. Keith Stewart, a fourth generation potter whose 26 family recently won the Governor's Award for Excellence in the 27 Arts, brought prestige with his fine ceramics. In September 2000,
28 Marc Deloach and Christine Schultz opened a seven-room art

29 gallery, displaying Taylor artists such as Jim Daigle, a local 30 landscape painter from the Savannah College of Art and Design;
31 Delta State graduate Jared Spears, an accomplished stone carver;
32 Alice Hammell, a popular self-taught abstract painter, who married
33 Obie Clark and opened a studio shop in Taylor; Christine Schultz,
34 a national magazine writer and recipient of the Mississippi Arts
35 Commission's Literary Arts Fellowship; and Marc Deloach, a noted 36 furniture maker working with old cypress, featured on ETV; and
